RE: MUR 5486

Dear Sir:

After careful consideration of the complaint noted in your correspondence to JM Management, we respectfully disagree that any violation has occurred. The billboard in question is simply a demonstration of an anonymous individual's right to express an opinion in a public format, without subjection to harassment.

The statement presented on the face of the board does not call for an endorsement of another person who might seek the political office in question; it simply states a belief that Mr. Obama should not be re-elected. Under our Constitutionally-protected rights to free speech, this individual should be allowed to implore her or her fellow citizens to visit the polls and lawfully remove any current office-holder whose actions are deemed unacceptable. We believe this statement best describes this situation, and we ask that the complaint be dismissed.

If there is further discussion warranted regarding this matter, please do not hesitate to contact our office, for we certainly wish to be compliant with all rules and regulations regarding our industry.

Thank you for your courteous response to the initial complaint.

Sincerely,

Mark Hicks
JM Management
